FULVIO TOMIZZA

Tomizza is the Voice of Istria. Thanks to his writings, the tragedy of the Istrian War has become known to international readers. For centuries this territory was contested, divided and partitioned among various peoples and powers.

The experience of being uprooted and forced to leave his native land in the postwar period, together with tens of thousands of his compatriots, gave the voice of the lungs of the Istrian people to his readers and critics.

In the Trieste park that originally flowed beneath this tree-lined road, Palazzo Vescovile stands. The park was built by Domenico Rossetti, the Trieste novelist, is where Tomizza was born.

The park is a popular spot for tourists and locals alike, providing a peaceful oasis amidst the hustle and bustle of city life.

The park is also home to a number of sculptures and monuments, including the statue of St. Anthony of Padua, who is the patron saint of Trieste.
